

RE: New Recycling Program

The City has started a new battery recycling program. Residents may take all common dry cell batteries to Chicago Public Libraries and Walgreen stores to be recycled. This includes alkaline and re-chargeable batteries. Disassemble rechargeable tools and toys and remove the batteries from them. Look for the small plastic cylinder in the library and the bucket near the photo counter at Walgreen. By recycling your used batteries, you will help keep toxic substances out of the waste stream and the battery components will be reclaimed for reuse. This program is now in affect in the Ravenswood area; check your local Walgreen and Library to see when they will begin the program.
